

The Cholangiocarcinoma Foundation invites you to support 21 Miles of Hope!

The goal of 21 Miles of Hope is to increase awareness of cholangiocarcinoma and to raise $100,000 in support of the Foundation's mission by the end of 2022. The campaign is uniquely designed and volunteer-driven, which has allowed it to receive quite a bit of media attention. However, currently, there is a critical need for campaign sponsors. Sponsorship opportunities, detailed below, are available at varying levels from $500-$25,000. Become a sponsor today, by visiting 21MilesofHope.org.

"More people are being diagnosed now, including many younger people.
Therefore, my 21 Miles of Hope campaign is to raise money and awareness and to make a difference for those diagnosed currently. We need advances and early detection for this deadly disease."

- Jonathan Whiting

21 Miles of Hope was initiated by Foundation volunteer Jonathan Whiting, whose wife, Lori Whiting, passed away from cholangiocarcinoma in October of 2016 after a courageous, nearly four-year battle with cholangiocarcinoma. Lori's strength and tenacity inspired Jonathan to raise awareness and funding for the Foundation in her honor. The 60-year-old decorated triathlete from St. Louis, MO, decided to accomplish this by swimming the famous English Channel—the 21-miles stretch of water between England and France. After two years of rigorous training, Jonathan is scheduled to complete the swim the week of July 17, 2022.
